Beat Penn for College Title With Saber Victory After Quakers Top Foil Test

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 14.—Although the midshipmen from Annapolis are accustomed to more modern weapons, the Navy fencing team could not be stopped as it went on to win the three-weapon title in the Intercollegiate Association tournament today.

Trailing until the saber contests were decided at the Payne Whitney gymnasium this afternoon with eleven challenging colleges, Navy captured the team honors in this competition to emerge as the over-all victor with a total of 70 points.

The midshipmen had not taken saber team laurels since 1949, and it was in 1943 that they last were able to triumph in the bid for three-weapon supremacy.

The saber men lost only four of thirty-three bouts and this meant that the twenty-nine victories thus scored boosted the Navy point total ahead of Penn, which finished second with 66. The Red and Blue gained the advantage earlier with team victories in the foil this morning and the épée yesterday. Navy had been 8 points astern of Penn going into the saber tests.

Herman Wallner of N. Y. U. retained the individual épée championship and Ed Nober took the individual foil title.

Bob Parmacek of Penn captured the laurels in the individual saber competition.

Columbia Finishes Third

Columbia, which had shared team honors with N. Y. U. in saber in 1952, while the Violets captured three weapon laurels, finished second in saber and third in three-weapon with 62. Then came N.Y.U. and Cornell with 57. Yale had 54, Rutgers and Princeton 47 each, Army 37, Brooklyn College 36, Harvard 33, City College 28.

Outstanding in Navy's achievement in saber was Frank Zimolzak, who served with the Marine corps in Japan before entering the Naval Academy. The saber expert who won the college crown last year, went undefeated in the round robin, winning eleven bouts for his team. His team-mates, Ray Paulsen of Hemlock Grove, Ohio, and Joseph Allen of Muskogee, Okla., contributed eight and ten victories to swell the Navy total.

Against this pace, the opposition could make little headway. Enjoying a two-point margin in saber, Navy opposed Columbia, its closest rival, and triumphed by 2 to 1, Paulsen bowing to Bob Schafer.

Schafer, in pool No. 2, had close to a perfect afternoon, losing only once, to qualify with Bob Miller of N. Y. U., also 10—1; Steve Sobel of Columbia, Parmacek; 10—1; Navy's Allen and Zimolzak for the individual championship.

The Little Iron Man trophy went to Penn on its superior showing with the foil. It marked a new era in fencing for the Quakers. Despite the fact that the competition had been held since 1894, this was the first time that Penn won it.

A great deal of the credit went to Lajos Csiszar, Penn's coach, who assumed his job five years ago after many years of teaching in Budapest under Italo Santelli.

This morning's triumph matched the épée team's initial victory yesterday. And the foil fencers followed the example of their épée performers, for one of them came through with a sweep, winning all eleven bouts. This was Bob Goldman, 20-year-old former fencing captain at Brooklyn's Erasmus Hall High School. Yesterday it was John Tori who went through the épée field unbeaten for Penn.

As a result of Goldman's 11 points, one for each bout, Penn had a team tally of 24, just one ahead of Cornell. The Ithacans, who had beaten Penn during the round robin matches, 2—1, lost to City College, the tailenders.

It was Penn's closing rush that did it. The Quakers beat their last three rivals, City College, winner of the title last year; N. Y. U., and Yale, all with 3—0 scores, to overtake Cornell and Columbia, who had been tied at that stage with 16 to Penn's 15.

Aid With Seven Points

In the foil trio for Penn with Goldman were Captain Francis Bartone, the No. 1 man, and Achilles Nickles of Trenton. Each accounted for seven points.

Columbia and Brooklyn College, with 21, each finished in back of Penn and Cornell. Navy and N. Y. U. followed with 20 each. Princeton tallied 16. Rutgers and Yale 14 each, Army 12, Harvard 7 and City College 6.

Bartone fenced against Walter Rubinstein of Columbia and Philippe Mocquard of Cornell, French-born ace, to qualify. The fence-off ended in a deadlock and the tie was decided by counting the number of touches that had been registered against each contestant during the round-robin and the fence-off. Bartone had thirty-eight charged against him, Mocquard had forty-six and Rubinstein forty-nine.

Wallner Keeps Epée Title

Wallner kept his individual épée championship by sweeping five bouts. The 6-foot-6 N. Y. U. junior had two close tests, one against John Tori, the Penn star who was undefeated in the team bouts yesterday. Tori led Wallner, 2—0, before the New Yorker registered three touches in succession.

Phillip Vollman of Army was second while Tori accounted for third place after a tie, the Penn fencer being charged with ten touches, while Walter Brackelmanns of Rutgers and Don Loring of Navy had 11 and 12 against them, respectively. All three had won two bouts.

Brooklyn College rooters gained considerable satisfaction in the performance of Nober, their 19-year-old No. 1 foil representative, who was second in the 1952 N. C. A. A. championship. Nober not only defeated each of his five opponents for the individual crown but finished with only three touches against him. It marked the initial title for Brooklyn, which has been competing in the tourney for the last two seasons as a guest.

Parmacek, 21-year-old Penn star, dethroned Zimolzak in the individual saber competition. Parmacek, a senior from Chicago, thus brought Penn its initial individual championship in many years.

Although Parmacek had been undefeated in four bouts when he opposed Zimolzak, the midshipman pulled up to 4-all before Parmacek ended the bout. Sobel took second place. Zimolzak was third after a tie.
